Exercise 1 :

1. The last item I bought online was a T-wrench from TikTok Shop because I needed it to fix my motorcycle. I felt the transaction was safe since TikTok Shop offers buyer protection and refunds if the item doesn't match. When it arrived, I was quite satisfied because I didn't expect too much and it was cheap and looked just like the picture. For me, a good product page should have clear photos, honest descriptions, buyer reviews, and return policy information.

Exercise 3 :

1. An effective product page clearly informs and convinces customers to buy. It should have clear descriptions, high-quality images, customer reviews, transparent pricing, shipping details, and a strong call to action. Based on my analysis, Tokopedia meets most of these criteria. However, if I were to improve it, I would add 360° product views, video demos, and AI-based product recommendations to make it more engaging and personalized.
